ARGUMENTS GROW ON SEWER RATE PLAN District Man Killed In Ditch Cavein

Oakley Brown 2nd Of Family To Die In Year

3 Months-Old Baby
Victim Of Collision
Last Nov. 16 Here

Tragedy today struck a local family for the second time within a year.

Oakley Brown, 28, whose address was listed as Lancaster Pike, was killed shortly before 9 a. m. in a ditch collapse in the east end of Columbus. Last Nov. 16, his three months-old son was killed in a traffic accident in front of the Brown residence.

Brown was working on a housing project near the intersection of Livingston and Hamilton Roads
at the time of the accident. A fellow worker said Brown had lowered himself into a 6-foot deep ditch
to probe for a sewer line.

The co-worker reported Brown was on his hands and knees when the sides of the ditch suddenly gave way. He died before fellow workers could reach him.

IN THE FATAL accident last year, Brown had backed his car out onto Route 22 when it suddenly stalled. A truck bore down on the car and could not stop in time to avoid the crash.

Brown's wife, the former Patricia
Ann McPherson, and the child,
Kim LeRoy, both were thrown out of the car by the impact. The baby died of a skull fracture in Pick-away County's last fatal accident of 1954.

Brown's body will be turned over to the Defenbaugh Funeral Home here after the Franklin County coroner releases it. No definite funeral arrangements have yet been set.

Trucker Faces Accusation In Fatal Beating

CLEVELAND (AP)—A 33-year-old truck driver, who beat a 59-year-old salesman he says he found in a compromising situation with his wife, will be charged today with murder, police said.

The salesman, Victor D. Luka-novic of Columbus, died yesterday in a hospital here 10 days after the beating.

Police Capt. David E. Kerr said
he would seek a murder warrant against the truck driver, Louis W.
Taylor, who is 6 feet, 1 inch tall.
Taylor said in a signed statement he was sleeping in a back bedroom when he was awakened
by noises in the living room of his Cleveland apartment.

He went into the living room and switched on the lights to find his wife, Grace, 37, and Luka-novic lying partially disrobed on the sofa, Taylor said.

After an argument and fist fight,
Taylor said he threw Lukanovic
and his clothing out.

Mrs. Taylor, who said she tried to separate the two men, received a broken jaw and broken ribs in the row. She was released from the hospital yesterday. The Taylors' two sons, aged 8 and 9, slept through the fight.

Lukanovic's wife, Marie, a stenographer in the Ohio Senate at Columbus, came to Cleveland and stayed at her husband's bedside
until his death.

of three Ohio authors who will receive the group's highest literary honors.

Awards will be presented at the 16th annual author-composer
luncheon of the association here
Oct. 22. The awards are based on best contributions from Ohio to the book world.

Agatha Young's "Clown of the French Call Off Visit To Moscow

Paris Government Pulls Out
Of U.N. General Assembly In Huff

PARIS (AP)—The French Foreign Office announced today the proposed Oct. 14 visit of Premier Edgar Faure and Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay to Moscow has been postponed.

The Foreign Ministry said that the government considers, in view of recent events in the United Nations and the reaction of French opinion, the atmosphere is not favorable now for a trip of this type.

Russia voted with the majority last Friday in a 28-27 vote in the U. N. General Assembly to debate

troubles in Algeria. France insists Algeria is an integral part of France and Assembly debate about it would be a violation of the U. N. charter provision barring interference in the internal affairs of any member state.

As a result of the vote, the French government withdrew its delegation to the Assembly, and also its permanent delegation, but kept one foot in the U. N. door.

THE CABINET last night announced withdrawal of its U. N.
delegation and an end to participation in all activities of the international organization except those of the Security Council, its Disarmament Commission and its Military Staff Committee.

By remaining in the Security Council, France kept her preferred position as one of the five veto-holding permanent members.

The bitter decisions were taken as bloody fighting broke out anew
in Morocco, the most restless of France's North African territories. Armed guerrilla bands attacked at least five French outposts
in a nationalistic campaign against French rule.

These developments promised serious trouble for Faure when the National Assembly comes back tomorrow from its parliamentary vacation.

Many deputies are breathing
fire over government policies aimed at soothing North African nationalist while others think the government has moved too slowly.

The Cabinet, meeting in full-dress session with President Rene Coty in the chair, decided to withdraw the U. N. delegation after nine members of the delegation returned to Paris.

Because of the nationalist pressure, France has yielded to demands for home rule in Tunisia,
a protectorate, and has shelved the Sultan of Morocco, also a protectorate, as part of a program of reform. But no French government has ever dared propose any such compromises in Algeria, held
by the French since 1830.

3 Youths Held In Death Case

HILLSBORO (AP)—A 76-year-old
man was injured fatally by an automobile last night as he crossed
a road 12 miles south of here
enroute to church. Three youths,
who admitted to State Patrolman
R. L. Jenkins they were in the car and went on to a movie after the accident, were taken into custody
seven hours later.

Jenkins named the youths as Delbert Hensley, 18, of near Sardinia; George Miller, 18, of near Mowrytown, and Buel Center,
Mowrytown, and Buel Center,
21, of near Mt. Orab.

Victim of the accident was Walter F. Thackston. He was crossing
Ohio 136 in the Sugarbush Ridge community. He died in a Hillsboro hospital about three hours later.
The three youths were held here
pending filing of charges.

'Bipartisan Hypocrisy' Said Plentiful In 'Irreverent' White House Race

WASHINGTON (AP)—An air of
"bipartisan hypocrisy" is felt
these days in the nation's capital
and the race for the White House
has started with "irreverent
haste"—spectators are advised to
hold on to their hats.

That is the appraisal of the current political situation by James Reston, Pulitzer Prize-
winning Washington correspondent for the New York Times.

Reston continues his appraisal:
The people have their minds on
the ailing President, but the politicians are thinking about the presidency and maneuvering their favorite candidates toward the starting gate.

By all the available signs, this is going to be the longest and freest
presidential campaign since 1920,

Vandals Wreck Construction At Atwater School

City police have issued a stern
warning to youngsters as a result
of "malicious" vandalism at At-
water School over the weekend.

Any youngster found on the
school grounds during a weekend, or at any other unusual
time, will be taken to juvenile court, according to Sgt. George Greene. He added that this is being done to prevent further acts
of deliberate damage to the property.

The destruction apparently took place Saturday afternoon or evening, city police report, at the new
addition to the school. Construction
is in charge of a Washington C. H.
firm.

A combination tool shed and office structure was entered and ransacked. Grease was smeared
over all the interior.

SAND WAS poured into cement
mixers after all the water had been drained out. Mortar and bricks were thrown into a large
water container used by workmen.
All the electrical fixtures which
had been installed were broken.
There was also less serious damage.

City police said it was one of the worst cases of vandalism they
had encountered here in a long time.

1955 Boom Year For Herald Boy

It's a little early yet for the holiday business volume to show on
the nation's trade barometers, but Leonard Eblin, of Circleville, has already marked down 1955 as a boom year.

Young Eblin, one of The Herald
carriers, has just collected the $50 bonus that goes to all the Herald newsmen for each year they
stay consistently on the job. Eblin
completed his first year Saturday.

What will he do with the money?
"Well, I don't know yet," he said. "But most of it will go in
the bank."

The boy is a son of Mr. and Mrs.

Axle-Mile Tax Total Detailed

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio's controversial axle-mile tax produced $21,333,308 in its first 21 months of operation. The figure is for taxes collected through Sept. 29.

Of the total, $19,483,506 was put in the highway construction bond retirement fund, and $1,849,801
went for refunds and expenses.
The tax is a levy on trucks having more than two axles for use of Ohio highways.

14 Persons Die On Ohio Highways

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio's new

death toll reached double figures.

Traffic deaths totaled 14 during the period from 6 p. m. Friday

two other miscellaneous deaths.

Yankees Lead In 6th Game

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York
Yankees, fighting to even the World Series, hammered Karl Spoonier out of the box and grabbed a 5-0 lead over the Brooklyn Dodgers in the first inning here today.

Brooklyn Manager Walt Alston
picked Spoonier, a rookie left-hander, to pitch against the Yankees while Casey Stengel stuck
with southpaw Whitey Ford, who
won the opening game.

Before today's game, Brooklyn
catcher Roy Campanella shook his head sadly and allowed as how he wished the Series had ended in Eb-
bets Field.

"The Yankee Stadium is a tough
place to hit in," he said, "Especially when you're not used to it.
The shadows make it awful hard
to see the ball. In Ebbets Field
it's different. I know the place."

The figures bear Campy out.
He couldn't buy a hit in the first
two games in the stadium, but
when he got to Ebbets Field he found the range.

Today's play by play:

Religious Freedom Probe Postponed

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate
subcommittee's scheduled hearing
today on religious freedom has
been postponed indefinitely, partly
because of disagreement over the
wisdom of such a public hearing.

A spokesman for the subcommittee on constitutional rights said
the backstage controversy figured
in the postponement decision,
which Chairman Hennings (D-Mo) announced Friday. At the time, Hennings said the delay
would give added time for analyzing replies to 10,000 questionnaires
which had been sent out.

The spokesman said some persons have contended hearings
might unnecessarily open up sores
between religious faiths, while others have contended they would
clarify and promote understanding of religious issues that have caused controversy in the past.

Legal Opinion Given On Title Papers In Ohio

COLUMBUS (AP)—An opinion today by Atty. Gen. C. William
O'Neill answered questions raised
by various county officials about a
new law dealing with title documents for recording.

Effective today, the law enacted
by the last Legislature reads:

"No instrument by which the
title to real estate or personal property . . . is conveyed, created,
incumbered, assigned or otherwise
disposed of, shall be received for
record or filing by the county recorder unless the name of the person who, and governmental agency if any, which prepared such instrument, appears at the conclusion of such instrument . . ."

O'Neill ruled that under the new
law, in instrument has been "prepared" by the person who selected
the language used in the document.

O'Neill said a typist or stenographer who typed the document is
not considered to have "prepared"
such instrument. Where only one member of a firm of attorneys
drafted the document, but the firm's name appears, O'Neill ruled
he name of the individual attorney
should appear on the document.

Mexican Floods Leaving Havoc

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Floods in the wake of three disastrous hurri-canees besieged much of eastern Mexico today. Pleas for relief taxed the capacity of the government.

U. S. helicopters from the aircraft carrier Saipan, anchored outside Tampico, were in almost constant operation to transfer food, medical supplies and doctors from the carrier. Ten U. S. Air Force transports shuttled from Texas
bases with food and clothing.

Flooding also continued throughout mid-Mexico, with no immediate relief in sight.

Ordinance Set For Final Vote Tuesday Night

Erv Leist, Robinson
Outline Opposing
Views On Measure

With council preparing to vote
on the ordinance Tuesday night,
top spokesmen for the pros and cons outlined their arguments today on a proposal to overhaul
and increase the city's sewer rental rate.

Public Utilities Manager Erv
Leist, long-time booster for
any steps taken to modernize Circleville's sewer system, again
emphasized council's leading opponent of the measure up for decision, declared the proposal
would probably reduce—instead
of increase—much-needed revenue.

Foremost in view, in the big picture of city-wide sewer improvements, is a plan to extend sanitary sewer lines to the locality
south of Forest Cemetery. The current argument centers on the best way to do this, and how the
work can be financed.

Statements by Leist and Robinson were not in the nature of a debate between the two. Both happened to voice their conflicting
views on the eve of the important
council action.

LAST FRIDAY, Chairman John
F. Mader of the city board of public utilities charged council
with deliberate neglect of urgent
problems involving the sewer system. He urged the public to prod
the lawmakers in any manner
found convenient.

The measure up for final reading Tuesday night, and the problem it is designed to help solve,
reflect more than the needs of one
of the main municipal branches.
They also reflect how the city is
having increased difficulty in finding enough money to keep many
facilities and services in stride
with modern demands.

aches at this particular time for

when you use it you have to have to design electric blankets, that's his business. Thank goodness!

'Tears' Disease Test Is Found

Little-Known Child's Illness Given Study

CHICAGO (AP)—Development of a simple saliva test for easier detection of a usually fatal and
"oftentimes misdiagnosed" children's ailment called "the disease of salty tears" was reported today.

A team of University of Maryland researchers said the new test consists simply of placing a wad of cotton in a child's mouth, collecting saliva and testing it for its salt content.

Dr. Samuel P. Bessman and two colleagues told about it at a scientific exhibit at the opening today of the 24th annual meeting of the American Academy of Pediatrics.

The disease, technically known as "fibrocystic disease," can cause a plugging of certain pathways in the pancreas or lungs. It gets its nickname, "salty tear disease" from the fact that it usually causes malfunctioning of the sweat, salivary and tear-producing glands, resulting in an abnormal amount of salt in those secretions.

DIGESTIVE processes are disturbed, resulting in weakened bodies and bloated abdomens. When the lungs are affected, children are barrel-chested and subject to frequent respiratory ailments.

The ailment also is a common cause of heat prostration in children due to disturbance of the sweat glands. Death usually occurs by age 12.

Dr. Bessman said the disease has been estimated to occur in from 1 in 500 births, but that it may be up to five times more prevalent than is commonly believed.

And he declared it is frequently misdiagnosed as bronchial asthma or chronic diarrhea.

Up to now, he said, diagnosis
has involved such things as in-serting tubes into the digestive passages, or making "complex"
tests of sweat. All such procedures are time-consuming and require special equipment.

mands for home rule in Tunisia,
a protectorate, and has shelved the

reform. But no French government has ever dared propose any
such compromises in Algeria, held
by the French since 1830.

3 Youths Held In Death Case

HILLSBORO (AP)—A 76-year-old
man was injured fatally by an automobile last night as he crossed a road 12 miles south of here
enroute to church. Three youths,
who admitted to State Patrolman

and went on to a movie after the
accident, were taken into custody
seven hours later.

Jenkins named the youths as
Delbert Hensley, 18, of near Sar-
dinia; George Miller, 18, of near Mowrystown, and Buel Center,
21, of near Mt. Orab.

Victim of the accident was Walter F. Thackston. He was crossing

WASHINGTON (AP)—An air of
"bipartisan hypocrisy" is felt
these days in the nation's capital
and the race for the White House
has started with "irreverent
haste"—spectators are advised to
hold on to their hats.

That is the appraisal of the
James Reston, Pulitzer Prize-
winning Washington correspondent for the New York Times.

Reston continues his appraisal:
The people have their minds on
the ailing President, but the politicians are thinking about the presidency and maneuvering their favorite candidates toward the starting gate.

By all the available signs, this is going to be the longest and freest
presidential campaign since 1920,

Vandals Wreck Construction At Atwater School

City police have issued a stern
warning to youngsters as a result
of "malicious" vandalism at At-
water School over the weekend.

Any youngster found on the
school grounds during a week-
end, or at any other unusual
time, will be taken to juvenile
court, according to Sgt. George Greene. He added that this is being done to prevent further acts
of deliberate damage to the
property.

The destruction apparently took
place Saturday afternoon or evening, city police report, at the new
addition to the school. Construction
is in charge of a Washington C. H.
firm.

A combination tool shed and office structure was entered and
ransacked. Grease was smeared
over all the interior.

SAND WAS poured into cement
mixers after all the water had
been drained out. Mortar and
bricks were thrown into a large
water container used by workmen.

All the electrical fixtures which
had been installed were broken.

There was also less serious dam-
age.

City police said it was one of
the worst cases of vandalism they
had encountered here in a long
time.

1955 Boom Year For Herald Boy

It's a little early yet for the holiday business volume to show on
the nation's trade barometers, but Leonard Eblin, of Circleville, has
already marked down 1955 as a
boom year.

Young Eblin, one of The Herald
carriers, has just collected the $50 bonus that goes to all the Herald newsmen for each year they
stay consistently on the job. Eblin
completed his first year Saturday.

What will he do with the money?
"Well, I don't know yet," he said. "But most of it will go in
the bank."

The boy is a son of Mr. and Mrs.

Yankees Lead In 6th Game

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York
World Series, hammered Karl Spoonor out of the box and grabbed a 5-0 lead over the Brooklyn
Dodgers in the first inning here today.

picked Spooner, a rookie left-
hander, to pitch against the Yankees while Casey Stengel stuck
with southpaw Whitey Ford, who
won the opening game.

Before today's game, Brooklyn
catcher Roy Campanella shook his
head sadly and allowed as how he wished the Series had ended in Eb-
bets Field.

"The Yankee Stadium is a tough
place to hit in," he said. "Especially when you're not used to it.
The shadows make it awful hard
to see the ball. In Ebbets Field
it's different. I know the place."

The figures bear Campy out.
He couldn't buy a hit in the first
two games in the stadium, but
when he got to Ebbets Field he
found the range.

Religious Freedom Probe Postponed

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate
subcommittee's scheduled hearing
today on religious freedom has
been postponed indefinitely, partly
because of disagreement over the
wisdom of such a public hearing.

A spokesman for the subcommittee on constitutional rights said
the backstage controversy figured
in the postponement decision,
which Chairman Hennings (D-Mo) announced Friday. At the
time, Hennings said the delay
would give added time for analyzing replies to 10,000 questionnaires
which had been sent out.

The spokesman said some persons have contended hearings
might unnecessarily open up sores
between religious faiths, while others have contended they would
clarify and promote understand-
ing of religious issues that have
caused controversy in the past.

COLUMBUS (AP)—An opinion to-
day by Atty. Gen. C. William
O'Neill answered questions raised
by various county officials about a
new law dealing with title documents for recording.

Effective today, the law enacted
by the last Legislature reads:

"No instrument by which the
title to real estate or personal property . . . is conveyed, created,
incumbered, assigned or otherwise
disposed of, shall be received for
record or filing by the county recorder unless the name of the per-
son who, and governmental agency if any, which prepared such instrument, appears at the conclusion of such instrument . . ."

O'Neill ruled that under the new
law, in instrument has been "prepared" by the person who selected
ment.

O'Neill said a typist or steno-
grapher who typed the document is
not considered to have "prepared"
such instrument. Where only one
member of a firm of attorneys
drafted the document, but the
firm's name appears, O'Neill ruled
he name of the individual attorney
should appear on the document.

Ordinance Set For Final Vote Tuesday Night

Erv Leist, Robinson
Outline Opposing
Views On Measure

With council preparing to vote
on the ordinance Tuesday night,
top spokesmen for the pros and
cons outlined their arguments to-
day on a proposal to overhaul
and increase the city's sewer rental rate.

Public Utilities Manager Erv
Leist, long-time booster for
any steps taken to modernize Circleville's sewer system, again
emphasized council's leading opponent of the measure up for decision, declared the proposal
would probably reduce—instead
of increase—much-needed revenue.

Foremost in view, in the big picture of city-wide sewer improvements, is a plan to extend sani-
south of Forest Cemetery. The
current argument centers on the
best way to do this, and how the
work can be financed.

Statements by Leist and Robin-
son were not in the nature of a
debate between the two. Both happened to voice their conflicting
views on the eve of the important
council action.

LAST FRIDAY, Chairman John
F. Mader of the city board of
public utilities charged council
with deliberate neglect of urgent
problems involving the sewer system. He urged the public to prod
the lawmakers in any manner
found convenient.

The measure up for final reading Tuesday night, and the problem it is designed to help solve,

of the main municipal branches.
They also reflect how the city is
having increased difficulty in finding enough money to keep many
facilities and services in stride

Egypt, Israel Pull Out Of Truce Area

Diplomats Continuing Battle Of Words Over Arms Sales To Cairo

CAIRO (AP)—Egypt and Israel have finished pulling back their troops from the demilitarized El Ajuz-Nizana zone but on the diplomatic front the battle of words continued over Egyptian plans to buy Communist arms.

Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser told military academy graduates in a speech that Egyptian intelligence had intercepted a message from the British War Ministry to the British Foreign Office saying Egypt would work to avoid aggression "but we have little confidence that Israel will follow the same policy."

There was no immediate comment from the British.

On the Israeli side, the Jewish nation's ambassador to the United States, Abba Eban, told an American television audience the United States should sell Israel arms "if the balance of power in the Middle East is going to be disturbed."

Moscow radio defended the right of Egypt to buy arms wherever she chose. The broadcast said the Soviet government had no informed Egypt, Czechoslovakia, from which the Egyptians plan to buy heavy arms the West won't sell them, and Britain and the United States.

THE UNITED STATES offered to sell arms to the Egyptians but not the heavy tanks, heavy artillery and jet bombers she wants.

The semi-official newspaper Al Gumbhurriya today published a purported French report on Western arms deliveries to Israel.

The report said Israel has received from the British 20 Gloster Meteor pursuit planes, 50 P51 Mustangs, 20 Mosquito bombers, 7 C47 transports, 100 Sherman tanks, 15 Churchill tanks, 100 armored cars and 70 field guns.

The U. S. supply to the Israelis was put at 12 P21 trainers.

A French Embassy spokesman said the embassy "knows nothing concerning this document."

Completion of the troop withdrawal from the demilitarized zone on the Israeli-Egyptian frontier was announced by the U. N. truce group in Jerusalem.

Israel sent troops into the zone Sept. 21, charging the Egyptians had established military posts in the area and had torn down frontier markers the Israelis had put up. The chief truce supervisor, Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, called on both countries to withdraw.

Anxiety Eases Over Condition Of Eisenhower

No Complications Found By Medics, Late Report Says

DENVER (AP)—Anxiety over President Eisenhower's illness eased today as physicians reported his condition "showed no changes to indicate complications."

The bulletin said the American chief executive's condition "remains satisfactory."

The official report from Fitzsimons Army Hospital at 9:40 a. m. served to lift tension created when the doctors announced last night that Eisenhower was "a little tired" and not feeling "as well as usual."

The Sunday evening bulletin was the first which failed to say that the chief executive was progressing satisfactorily "without complications."

The doctors have said repeatedly that any complications were most likely to develop during the first two weeks after the heart attack Eisenhower suffered a week ago last Saturday.

THE CHANGE in the 64-year-old President's condition last night came on the ninth day of the crucial first two weeks.

Eisenhower received a sedative, second, before retiring for the night. No additional dose was given to him when he awakened at 4:25.

Last night's bulletin said: "The President is a little tired this evening and did not feel as well as usual. Otherwise his condition is good. His temperature, pulse and blood pressure are normal."

It was the 35th Fitzsimons bulletin on Eisenhower's condition since he entered there a week ago last Saturday—and the first, since the early hours after his "moderate" heart attack that day, that failed to report he was making satisfactory progress "without complications."

Newsman asked Hagerty whether the change in the President's condition could be considered a "setback."

"I am not going beyond what I said," Hagerty replied in allusion to the medical bulletin he has just read to reporters, or beyond "what the doctors have given me."

Nor would he say whether the change amounted to development of complications.

As soon as the change in Eisenhower's condition came, his hospital physicians telephoned Dr. Paul Dudley White of Boston, one of the world's foremost heart specialists, to report the development.

"It makes us suspicious that there may be something behind it," the doctor said.

WHITE FLEW to Denver to examine the President shortly after his attack and returned to Boston last Monday.

He added that the doctors at Fitzsimons had shown no alarm in reporting to him. It was one of the two daily calls the Denver doctors have been making to White, who had been planning to come back here this weekend for a new check-up on Eisenhower's condition.

White said last night he had no plans to go to Denver sooner than Saturday.

Another purpose of White's return was to decide, in consultation with the other doctors, how much activity Eisenhower should be permitted.

Mayor Turns Spotlight On Fund Drive

Circleville Mayor Bob Hedges has called special attention this week to the Pickaway County Community Fund drive.

The drive is already well under way, but plans call for all-out campaigning for the next two weeks. That is why Mayor Hedges has proclaimed Tuesday and Wednesday as "Community Fund Days."

Solicitors will begin their door-to-door visits in the residential sections on those days, spurred to high enthusiasm by early reports received from the industrial solicitation group.

Approximately 90 percent of those contacted so far among the industrial plant workers have agreed to donate to the drive, which eventually is designed to merge all of the district's fund-raising efforts. This year's campaign, the first Community Fund drive ever launched here, is led by Dr. G. D. Phillips.

Agencies already included in the Fund organization are: Pickaway County Red Cross, Salvation Army, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and the Pickaway County Youth Canteen.

Last Friday night the physicians, with White's approval, permitted the President to sign two federal documents. It was the first business he had transacted since being hospitalized.

White and the other physicians have said all along that the first two weeks after Eisenhower's coronary thrombosis would be the crucial period. They have said repeatedly that complications could come any time during those first 14 days.

It was about 9:15 last night when Hagerty showed up with the bulletin in the temporary White House press room at Lowery Air Force Base, about four miles from the hospital. By that time reporters were beginning to suspect that something might be up.

HAGERTY, solemn-faced in contrast to his cheerful mood earlier, then read the bulletin. Explaining the delay of more than an hour, he said he had waited at the hospital until the doctors completed their regular evening examination after finding that the President was "tired."

When he finished reading the report, he volunteered that the development did represent "a change in his condition."

There were four doctors in on last night's examination, but Hagerty called the number "routine." Those on hand were Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, the White House physician; Col. Thomas W. Mattingly, a heart specialist from the Army's Walter Reed Hospital in Washington; Col. Byron E. Pollock, chief of heart specialists at Fitzsimons; and Col. George M. Powell, chief of Fitzsimons' medical department.

Nearly a dozen accidents were reported by local law enforcement officers over the weekend. Approximately 14 persons were injured, but none fatally.

Saturday, seven persons were hurt in two collisions. On Sunday, seven others were injured in three accidents. These included:

1. Mrs. Ora Dumm, 71, of Circleville Route 1, received abrasions of the head and arms, a bump on the head and shock in an accident on Route 159 at the Haysville-Adelphi Rd. She was accused by Deputy Sheriff Carl White of making a turn in front of another car.

Ronald Sparks, 20, of Blevins, Ky., driver of the second auto, suffered abrasions of both legs and right arm. A passenger in his car, 15-year-old Charles G. Ison of Pickerington Route 1, received a lacerated forehead.

2. A HEAD-ON collision of two cars on Route 56 a mile east of Circleville resulted in injuries to four men. Officers today could still not determine just how the crash occurred.

Amos Van Fossen, 23, of Laurelville Route 2, driver of the west-bound car, suffered head injuries and a broken left leg. He was taken to University Hospital in Columbus, as was Robert Weaver, 26, of Laurelville, driver of the second car. Weaver, who is a barber here, had lacerations of the face and shoulder.

The other two injuries were sustained by passengers in a Fossen's car. Lloyd Ward, 25, of Londonderry Route 1, had a lacerated forehead; Jimmy Vanover, 15, of Laurelville Route 2, had lacerations of the left knee, side and arm.

Sheriff's deputies and State Patrolman Jim Cooper, together with numerous volunteers, finally managed to clear the road of the wreckage and get the long string of traffic moving again.

3. Branson Hawks, 6, of 343 E. Franklin St., was knocked from his bicycle by a car in an alley near the Franklin St. School. He received a badly bruised knee and scratches, according to a police report.

Robert Ellis, 19, one of the occupants, is out on bond in Springfield scheduled to appear on an accusation of petit larceny. Deputy White said. One of the girls, who gave her name as Billie Jo Lance, may be using an alias, the deputy added, and may be younger than the age she gave, 19.

Wichita Flooded After Cloudburst

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—More than 600 persons were evacuated from their homes in the north section of Wichita yesterday after a thunderstorm flooded the area with seven inches of rain.

Motorboats were used to take out some of the stranded residents.

The swollen Arkansas River also flooded farm lands north of the city and covered some state roads.

High winds hampered rescue operations but no deaths or injuries were reported. The county disaster unit provided clothing and food.

Bobbitt, 39, of Detroit, Mich., and Cecil Bobbitt, 13, both had abrasions and lacerations of the legs.

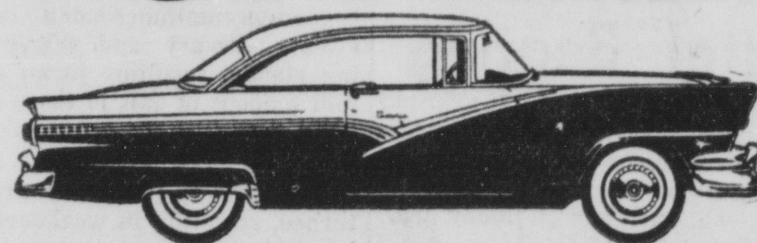

Other property damage accidents included a hit-skip near South Bloomfield and the crash of a car into a parked auto on E. Ohio St. Additional accidents were reported in various parts of the county by the sheriff's department and State Patrol.

Egypt, Israel Pull Out Of Truce Area

Diplomats Continuing Battle Of Words Over Arms Sales To Cairo

CAIRO (P)—Egypt and Israel have finished pulling back their troops from the demilitarized El Auja-Nizana zone but on the diplomatic front the battle of words continued over Egyptian plans to buy Communist arms.

Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser told military academy graduates in a speech that Egyptian intelligence had intercepted a message from the British War Ministry to the British Foreign Office saying Egypt would work to avoid aggression "but we have little confidence that Israel will follow the same policy."

There was no immediate comment from the British.

On the Israeli side, the Jewish nation's ambassador to the United States, Abba Eban, told an American television audience the United States should sell Israel arms "if the balance of power in the Middle East is going to be disturbed."

Moscow radio defended the right of Egypt to buy arms wherever she chose. The broadcast said the Soviet government had no informed Egypt, Czechoslovakia, from which the Egyptians plan to buy heavy arms the West won't sell them, and Britain and the United States.

THE UNITED STATES offered to sell arms to the Egyptians but not the heavy tanks, heavy artillery and jet bombers she wants.

The semi-official newspaper Al Gumburria today published a purported French report on Western arms deliveries to Israel.

The report said Israel has received from the British 20 Gloster Meteor pursuit planes, 50 P51 Mustangs, 20 Mosquito bombers, 7 C47 transports, 100 Sherman tanks, 15 Churchill tanks, 100 armored cars and 70 field guns.

The U. S. supply to the Israelis was put at 12 PT17 trainers.

A French embassy spokesman said the embassy "knows nothing concerning this document."

Completion of the troop withdrawal from the demilitarized zone on the Israeli-Egyptian frontier was announced by the U. N. truce group in Jerusalem. Israel sent troops into the zone Sept. 21, charging the Egyptians had established military posts in the area and had torn down frontier markers the Israelis had put up. The chief truce supervisor, Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, called on both countries to withdraw.

Anxiety Eases Over Condition Of Eisenhower

No Complications Found By Medics, Late Report Says

DENVER (P)—Anxiety over President Eisenhower's illness eased today as physicians reported his condition "showed no changes to indicate complications."

The bulletin said the American chief executive's condition "remains satisfactory."

The official report from Fitzsimons Army Hospital at 9:40 a. m. served to lift tension created when the doctors announced last night that Eisenhower was "a little tired" and not feeling "as well as usual."

The Sunday evening bulletin was the first which failed to say that the chief executive was progressing satisfactorily "without complications."

The doctors have said repeatedly that any complications were most likely to develop during the first two weeks after the heart attack Eisenhower suffered a week ago last Saturday.

THE CHANGE in the 64-year-old President's condition last night came on the ninth day of the crucial first two weeks.

Eisenhower received a sedative, second, before retiring for the night. No additional dose was given to him when he awakened at 4:25.

Last night's bulletin said: "The President is a little tired this evening and did not feel as well as usual. Otherwise his condition is good. His temperature, pulse and blood pressure are normal."

It was the 35th Fitzsimons bulletin on Eisenhower's condition since he entered there a week ago last Saturday—and the first, since the early hours after his "moderate" heart attack that day, that failed to report he was making satisfactory progress "without complications."

Newsmen asked Hagerty whether the change in the President's condition could be considered a "setback."

"I am not going beyond what I said," Hagerty replied in allusion to the medical bulletin he has just read to reporters, or beyond "what the doctors have given me."

He would not say whether the change amounted to development of complications.

As soon as the change in Eisenhower's condition came, his hospital physicians telephoned Dr. Paul Dudley White of Boston, one of the world's foremost heart specialists, to report the development.

"It makes us suspicious that there may be something behind it," the doctor said.

WHITE FLEW to Denver to examine the President shortly after his attack and returned to Boston last Monday.

He added that the doctors at Fitzsimons had shown no alarm in reporting to him. It was one of the two daily calls the Denver doctors have been making to White, who had been planning to come back here this weekend for a new check-up on Eisenhower's condition.

White said last night he had no plans to go to Denver sooner than Saturday.

Another purpose of White's return was to decide, in consultation with the other doctors, how much activity Eisenhower should be permitted.

Mayor Turns Spotlight On Fund Drive

Circleville Mayor Bob Hedges has called special attention this week to the Pickaway County Community Fund drive.

The drive is already well under way, but plans call for all-out campaigning for the next two weeks. That is why Mayor Hedges has proclaimed Tuesday and Wednesday as "Community Fund Days."

Solicitors will begin their door-to-door visits in the residential sections on those days, spurred to high enthusiasm by early reports received from the industrial solicitation group.

Approximately 90 percent of those contacted so far among the industrial plant workers have agreed to donate to the drive, which eventually is designed to merge all of the district's fund-raising efforts. This year's campaign, the first Community Fund drive ever launched here, is led by Dr. G. D. Phillips.

Agencies already included in the fund organization are: Pickaway County Red Cross, Salvation Army, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and the Pickaway County Youth Canteen.

Friends may call in the funeral home after 1 p. m. Tuesday.

None of them had a driver's license, Deputy White said, nor a registration slip for the car. Further investigation revealed that the car and one license plate were stolen the night before, he added.

Robert Ellis, 19, one of the occupants, is out on bond in Springfield scheduled to appear on an accusation of petit larceny, Deputy White said. One of the girls, who gave her name as Billie Jo Lance, may be using an alias, the deputy added, and may be younger than the age she gave, 19.

America's Famous Best Seller "GIFT FROM THE SEA"

Anne Lindbergh Discusses the Changing Pattern of Marriage

By ANNE MORROW LINDBERGH

THIS SHELL was a gift; I did not find it. It was handed to me by a friend. It is unusual on the island. One does not often come across such a perfect double-sunrise shell. Both halves of this delicate bivalve are exactly matched. Each side, like the wing of a butterfly, is marked with the same pattern; translucent white, except for three rosy rays that fan out from the golden hinge binding the two together. I hold two sunrises between my thumb and finger. Smooth, whole, unblemished shell. I wonder how its fragile perfection survived the breakers on the beach.

It is unusual; yet it was given to me freely. People are like that here. Strangers smile at you on the beach, come up and offer you a shell, for no reason, lightly, and then go by and leave you alone again. Nothing is demanded of you in payment, no social rite expected, no tie established. It was a gift, freely offered, freely taken, in mutual trust. People smile at you here, like children, sure that you will not rebuff them, that you will smile back. And you do, because you know it will involve nothing. The smile, the act, the relationship is hung in space, in the immediacy and purity of the present; suspended on the still point of here and now; balanced there, on a shaft of air, like a seagull.

The pure relationship, how beautiful it is! How easily it is damaged, or weighed down with irrelevances—not even irrelevances, just life itself, the accumulations of life and of time. For the first part of every relationship is pure, whether it be with friend or lover, husband or child. It is pure, simple and unencumbered. It is like the artist's vision before he has to discipline it into form, or like the flower of love before it has ripened to the firm but heavy fruit of responsibility. Every relationship seems simple at its start. The simplicity of first love, or friendliness, the mutuality of first sympathy seems, at its initial appearance—even if merely in exciting conversation across a dinner table—to be a self-enclosed world. Two people listening to each other, two shells meeting each other, making one world between them. There are no others in the perfect unity of that instant, no other people or things or interests. It is free of ties or claims, unburdened by responsibilities, by worry about the future or debts to the past.

And then how swiftly, how inevitably the perfect unity is invaded; the relationship changes; it becomes complicated, encumbered by its contact with the world. I believe this is true in most relationships, with friends, with husband or wife, and with one's children. But it is the marriage relationship in which the changing pattern is shown up most clearly because it is the deepest one and the most arduous to maintain; and because, somehow, we mistakenly feel that failure to maintain its exact original pattern is tragedy.

It is true, of course, the original relationship is very beautiful. Its self-enclosed perfection wears the freshness of a spring morning. Forgetting about the summer to come, one often feels one would like to prolong the spring of early love, when two people stand as individuals, without past or future, facing each other. One resents any change, even though one knows that transformation is natural and part of the process of life and its evolution. Like its parallel in physical passion, the early ecstatic stage of a relationship cannot continue always at the same pitch of intensity. It moves to another phase of growth which one should not dread, but welcome as one welcomes summer after spring. But there is also a dead weight accumulation, a coating of false values, habits, and burdens which blights life. It is this smothering coat that needs constantly to be stripped off, in life as well as in relationships.

Both men and women feel the change in the early relationship and hunger nostalgically for its original pattern as life goes on and becomes more complicated. For inevitably, as the relationship grows, both men and women, at least to some degree, are drawn into their more specialized and functional roles: man, into his less personal work in the world; woman, into her traditional obligations with family and household. In both fields, functional relationships tend to take the place of the early all-absorbing personal one. But woman refinds in a limited form with each new child, something resembling, at least in its absorption, the early pure relationship. In the sheltered simplicity of the first days after a baby is born, one sees again the magical closed circle, the miraculous sense of two people existing only for each other, the tranquil sky reflected on the face of the mother nursing her child. It is, however, only a brief interlude and not a substitute for the original more complete relationship.

But though both men and women are absorbed in their specialized roles and each misses something of the early relationship, there are great differences in their needs. While man, in his realm, has less chance for personal relations than woman, he may have more opportunity for giving himself creatively in work. Woman, on the other hand, has more chance for personal relations, but these do not give her a sense of her creative identity, the individual who has something of her own to say or to give. With each partner hungry for different reasons and each misunderstanding the other's needs, it is easy to fall apart or into late love affairs. The temptation is to blame the situation on the other person and to accept the easy solution that a new and more understanding partner will solve everything.

But neither woman nor man are likely to be fed by another relationship which seems easier because it is in an earlier stage. Such a love affair cannot really bring back a sense of identity. Certainly, one has the illusion that one will find oneself in being loved for what one really is, not for a collection of functions. But can one actually find oneself in someone else? In someone else's love? Or even in the mirror someone else holds up for one? I believe that true identity is found, as Eckhart once said, by "going into one's own ground and knowing oneself." It is found in creative activity springing from within. It is found, paradoxically, when one loses oneself. One must lose one's life to find it. Woman can best refind herself by losing herself in some kind of creative activity of her own. Here she will be able to refind her strength, the strength she needs to look and work at the second half of the problem—the neglected pure relationship. Only a refound person can refind a personal relationship.

But can the pure relationship of the sunrise shell be refound once it has become obscured? Obviously some relationships can never be recovered. It is not just a question of different needs to be understood and filled. In their changing roles the two partners may have grown in different directions or at different rates of speed. A brief double-sunrise episode may have been all they could achieve. It was an end in itself and not a foundation for a deeper relation. In a growing relationship, however, the original essence is not lost but merely buried under the impedimenta of life. The core of reality is still there and needs only to be uncovered and reaffirmed.

One way of rediscovering the double sunrise is to duplicate some of its circumstances. Husband and wife can and should go off on vacations alone and also on vacations alone together. For if it is possible that woman can find herself by having a vacation alone, it is equally possible that the original relationship can sometimes be refound by having a vacation alone together. Most married couples have felt the unexpected joy of one of these vacations. How wonderful it was to leave the children, the house, the job, and all the obligations of daily life, to go out together, whether for a month or a weekend or even just a night in an inn by themselves. How surprising it was to find the miracle of the sunrise repeated. There was the sudden pleasure of having breakfast alone with the man one fell in love with. Here at the small table, are only two people facing each other. How the table at home has grown! And how distracting it is, with four or five children, a telephone ringing in the hall, two or three school buses to catch, not to speak of the commuter's train. How all this separates one from one's husband and clogs up the pure relationship. But sitting at a table alone opposite each other, what is there to separate one? Nothing but a coffee pot, corn muffins and marmalade. A simple enough pleasure, surely, to have breakfast alone with one's husband, but how seldom married people in the midst of life achieve it.

Actually, I believe this temporary return to the pure relationship holds good for one's children, too. If only, I think, playing with my sunrise shell—if only we could have each of our children alone, not just for part of each day, but for part of each month, each year. Would they not be happier, stronger and, in the end, more independent because more secure? Does each child not secretly long for the pure relationship he once had with the mother, when he was "The Baby," when the nursery doors were shut and she was feeding him at her breast—alone? And if we were able to put into practice this belief and spend more time with each child alone—would he not only gain in security and strength, but also learn an important first lesson in his adult relationship?

We all wish to be loved alone. "Don't sit under the apple-tree with anyone else but me," runs the old popular song. Perhaps, as Auden says in his poem, this is a fundamental error in mankind.

For the error bred in the bone
Of each woman and each man Craves what it cannot have,
Not universal love
But to be loved alone.

Is it such a sin? In discussing this verse with an Indian philosopher, I had an illuminating answer. "It is all right to wish to be loved alone," he said, "mutuality is the essence of love. There cannot be others in mutuality. It is only in the time-sense that it is wrong. It is when we desire continuity of being loved alone that we go wrong." For not only do we insist on believing roman-

"But it is the marriage relationship in which the changing pattern is shown up most clearly because it is the deepest one and the most arduous to maintain; and because, somehow, we mistakenly feel that failure to maintain its exact original pattern is tragedy."

tically in the "one-and-only"—the one-and-only love, the one-and-only mate, the one-and-only mother, the one-and-only security—we wish the "one-and-only" to be permanent, ever-present and continuous. The desire for continuity of being-loved-alone seems to me "the error bred in the bone" of man. For "there is no one-and-only," as a friend of mine once said in a similar discussion, "there are just one-and-only moments."

The one-and-only moments are justified. The return to them even if temporarily, is valid. The moment over the marmalade and muffins is valid; the moment feeding the child at the breast is valid; the moment racing with him later on the beach is valid. Finding shells together, polishing chestnuts, sharing one's treasures—all these moments of together-aloneness are valid, but not permanent.

One comes in the end to realize that there is no permanent pure-relationship and there should not be. It is not even something to be desired. The pure relationship is limited, in space and in time. In its essence it implies exclusion. It excludes the rest of life, other relationships, other sides of personality, other responsibilities, other possibilities in the future. It excludes growth. The other children are there clamoring outside the closed nursery door. One loves them, too. The telephone rings in the next room. One also wants to talk to friends. When the muffins are cleared away, one must think of the next meal or the next day. These are realities too, not to be excluded. Life must go on. That does not mean it is a waste of time to recreate for brief holiday periods together-alone experiences. On the contrary, these one-and-only moments are both refreshing and rewarding. The light shed over the small breakfast table illumines the day, many days. The race on the beach together renews one's youth like a dip in the sea. But we are no longer children; life is not a beach. There is no pattern here for permanent return, only for refreshment.

One learns to accept the fact that no permanent return is possible to an old form of relationship; and, more deeply still, that there is no holding of a relationship to a single form. This is not tragedy but part of the ever-recurring miracle of life and growth. All living relationships are in process of change, of expansion, and must perpetually be building themselves new forms. But there is no single fixed form to express such a changing relationship. There are perhaps different forms for each successive stage; different shells I might put in a row on my desk to suggest the different stages of marriage—or indeed of any relationship.

My double-sunrise shell comes first. It is a valid image, I think, for the first stage, two flawless halves bound together with a single hinge, meeting each other at every point, the dawn of a new day spreading on each face. It is a world to itself. Is this not what the poets have always been attempting to describe? And now good-morrow to our waking souls Which watch not one another out of fear, For love all love of other sights controls, And makes one little room an everywhere. Let sea-discoverers to new worlds have gone, Let maps to other, worlds on worlds have shown, Let us possess one world; each hath one, and is one.

It is, however, a "little room," that Donne describes, a small world, that must be inevitably and happily outgrown. Beautiful, fragile, fleeting, the sunrise shell; but not for all that, illusory. Because it is not lasting, let us not fall into the cynic's trap and call it an illusion. Duration is not a test of true or false. The day of the dragon-fly or the night of the Saturnid moth is not invalid simply because that phase in its life cycle is brief. Validity need have no relation to time, to duration, to continuity. It is on another plane, judged by other standards. It relates to the actual moment in time and place. "And what is actual is actual only for one time and only for one place." The sunrise shell has the eternal validity of all beautiful and fleeting things.

America's Famous Best Seller "GIFT FROM THE SEA"

Anne Lindbergh Discusses the Changing Pattern of Marriage

By ANNE MORROW LINDBERGH

(This is the fourth installment of one of the most discussed books of our time, Anne Morrow Lindbergh's best-seller "Gift from the Sea.")

THIS SHELL was a gift; I did not find it. It was handed to me by a friend. It is unusual on the island. One does not often come across such a perfect double-sunrise shell. Both halves of this delicate bivalve are exactly matched. Each side, like the wing of a butterfly, is marked with the same pattern; translucent white, except for three rosy rays that fan out from the golden hinge binding the two together. I hold two sunrises between my thumb and finger. Smooth, whole, unblemished shell. I wonder how its fragile perfection survived the breakers on the beach.

It is unusual; yet it was given to me freely. People are like that here. Strangers smile at you on the beach, come up and offer you a shell, for no reason, lightly, and then go by and leave you alone again. Nothing is demanded of you in payment, no social rite expected, no tie established. It was a gift, freely offered, freely taken, in mutual trust. People smile at you here, like children, sure that you will not rebuff them, that you will smile back. And you do, because you know it will involve nothing. The smile, the act, the relationship is hung in space, in the immediacy and purity of the present, suspended on the still point of here and now, balanced there, on a shaft of air, like a seagull.

The pure relationship, how beautiful it is! How easily it is damaged, or weighed down with irrelevances—not even irrelevances, just life itself, the accumulations of life and of time. For the first part of every relationship is pure, whether it be with friend or lover, husband or child. It is pure, simple and unencumbered. It is like the artist's vision before he has to discipline it into form, or like the flower of love before it has ripened to the firm but heavy fruit of responsibility. Every relationship seems simple at its start. The simplicity of first love, or friendliness, the mutuality of first sympathy seems, at its initial appearance—even if merely in exciting conversation across a dinner table—to be a self-enclosed world. Two people listening to each other, two shells meeting each other, making one world between them. There are no others in the perfect unity of that instant, no other people or things or interests. It is free of ties or claims, unburdened by responsibilities, by worry about the future or debts to the past.

And then how swiftly, how inevitably the perfect unity is invaded; the relationship changes; it becomes complicated, encumbered by its contact with the world. I believe this is true in most relationships, with friends, with husband or wife, and with one's children. But it is the marriage relationship in which the changing pattern is shown up most clearly because it is the deepest one and the most arduous to maintain, and because, somehow, we mistakenly feel that failure to maintain its exact original pattern is tragedy.

It is true, of course, the original relationship is very beautiful. Its self-enclosed perfection wears the freshness of a spring morning. Forgetting about the summer to come, one often feels one would like to prolong the spring of early love, when two people stand as individuals, without past or future, facing each other. One resents any change, even though one knows that transformation is natural and part of the process of life and its evolution. Like its parallel in physical passion, the early ecstatic stage of a relationship cannot continue always at the same pitch of intensity. It moves to another phase of growth which one should not dread, but welcome as one welcomes summer after spring. But there is also a dead weight accumulation, a coating of false values, habits, and burdens which blights life. It is this smothering coat that needs constantly to be stripped off, in life as well as in relationships.

Both men and women feel the change in the early relationship and hunger nostalgically for its original pattern as life goes on and becomes more complicated. For inevitably, as the relationship grows, both men and women, at least to some degree, are drawn into their more specialized and functional roles: man, into his less personal work in the world; woman, into her traditional obligations with family and household. In both fields, functional relationships tend to take the place of the early all-absorbing personal one. But woman refinds in a limited form with each new child, something resembling, at least in its absorption, the early pure relationship. In the sheltered simplicity of the first days after a baby is born, one sees again the magical closed circle, the miraculous sense of two people existing only for each other, the tranquil sky reflected on the face of the mother nursing her child. It is, however, only a brief interlude and not a substitute for the original more complete relationship.

But though both men and women are absorbed in their specialized roles and each misses something of the early relationship, there are great differences in their needs. While man, in his realm, has less chance for personal relations than woman, he may have more opportunity for giving himself creatively in work. Woman, on the other hand, has more chance for personal relations, but these do not give her a sense of her creative identity, the individual who has something of her own to say or to give. With each partner hungry for different reasons and each misunderstanding the other's needs, it is easy to fall apart or into late love affairs. The temptation is to blame the situation on the other person and to accept the easy solution that a new and more understanding partner will solve everything.

But neither woman nor man are likely to be fed by another relationship which seems easier because it is in an earlier stage. Such a love affair cannot really bring back a sense of identity. Certainly, one has the illusion that one will find oneself in being loved for what one really is, not for a collection of functions. But can one actually find oneself in someone else? In someone else's love? Or even in the mirror someone else holds up for one? I believe that true identity is found, as Eckhart once said, by "going into one's own ground and knowing oneself." It is found in creative activity springing from within. It is found, paradoxically, when one loses oneself. One must lose one's life to find it. Woman can best refine herself by losing herself in some kind of creative activity of her own. Here she will be able to refine her strength, the strength she needs to look and work at the second half of the problem—the neglected pure relationship. Only a reformed person can find a personal relationship.

But can the pure relationship of the sunrise shell be refound once it has become obscured? Obviously some relationships can never be recovered. It is not just a question of different needs to be understood and

ROTHMAN'S

The lawmakers in view of the municipal elections coming in November.

By basing sewer rental rates on the amount of water used, the pending measure would mean an average rate increase of 31 cents a month for domestic and commercial users. However, Leist pointed out it would produce about 50 percent more revenue—about $9,500 a year.

Leist reminded that it would likewise help provide a financial reserve, needed to keep the city's credit rating high. He has also warned council that pay raises are long overdue for workers in the sewage service branch.

Robinson said he too favors such pay raises, but he indicated he takes a dim view of the importance put on a "cash reserve" to maintain the city's credit for future planning and projects.

AS FOR the proposal to boost sewer rates and tie them into the amount of water used, Robinson voiced strong objections. He declared sufficient revenue, at least for the wage increases, can be obtained through new sewer taps, anticipated in the city's steady growth, and by combining the municipal setup to plug "leaks" in potential revenue.

Robinson claimed increased sewer rates under the plan will cut the use of water in Circleville, "and we have water to sell—plenty of it." In this way, he said, the whole aim of the pending measure may be nullified.

A 10 percent reduction in water sales, he said, would offset about $8,000 in sewage rentals.

As for anticipated sewage taps added:

"A few years ago we only had about 1,900 taps. And now there are approximately 3,000. As I see it, we can probably add from 100 to 150 sewer taps next year as Circleville continues to grow and the new sections develop. And this—at $600 to $900.

"That isn't an awful lot, but it would go a long way. And more importantly, it shows what can be done."

Leist and many other city officials have frequently underlined the injustice of using flat rates in charging for sewer services. Leist has stressed how this forces a person living alone to pay as much for sewer service as a large family pays, perhaps in a next-door dwelling.

LEIST HAS conceded that "no-body likes to raise rates", but he reminded the public that Circleville residents have never been asked to meet an increase in either the sewer or water departments.

By calculating an average from the rates paid in various sections of the city, the utilities manager said the average water bill in the city for domestic and commercial users is $4.96 for three months. The present sewage bill average is $1.50 for three months for a single dwelling.

Under the new proposed sewage scale, based on the water average, about $2.43 for three months. This would be an increase of 93 cents for the three-month period—or a monthly hike of 31 cents.

The minimum charge, Leist explained, would be the same as the minimum charge for water—based on the size of the meter. The normal meter size is five-eighths by three-quarters inches. Add the minimum charge for that size is $1.80 for a three month period.

Therefore, Leist explained, the minimum sewer bill would be the same as a minimum water bill—which allows up to 400 cubic feet, or 3,000 gallons, of water.

Leist said he and other officials of the utilities services here want to make it clear that they are not proposing some new and experimental plan in basing sewer rates on water consumption. Such an arrangement, he said, is steadily becoming the modern policy throughout the state.

IN THIS connection, Leist called attention to a recent statement in which the Ohio Department of Health said:

"It is significant that, at this time, approximately 92 percent of the 284 municipalities served by sewage works, in service or under construction, are in some manner making use of revenues derived from sewer service charges. About two-thirds of the rate schedules are based on water consumption. Many municipalities must give consideration to both volume and strength of wastes in the development or rate structures for equitable serving the users of sewers."

Robinson aimed much of his criticism at a plan to build a large pumping station in the southwestern corner of Ted Lew- is Park—part of a vast plan eventually designed to modernize the sewer network throughout the Northend.

Robinson said there are serious doubts as to whether bonding attorneys would consider the big

pumping station legal, because of bonding technicalities and the way the city would plan to use this new unit.

"Furthermore," he said, "it would be intended only for one relatively small section of the city, the area south of the cemetery and west of Court St."

"THEN TOO—although a lot of residents of that area do not realize it—the money that would be spent for the pumping station would only be a start on the project south of the cemetery. Residents of that area would still have to pay about $400 per lot for sewer assessments!"

Robinson said: "Some of us on council feel there should be a more economical way to do it—to bring the sewage line over to the Court St. sewer and eliminate the need of the big pumping station."

He estimated that the big pumping station and a force main would cost approximately $118,000.

Robinson said he is determined to oppose the proposal to raise sewer rates. If the plan would pass council, he warned, "I know very definitely that there would be a referendum on it."

vote Tuesday night. He confined himself instead to pointing out that:

1. Councilmen assured him long ago that the lawmakers would take favorable action if such a proposal were placed before them.

2. Defeat of the measure will only aggravate the serious situation involving the city's sewer services.

3. The longer council delays action the more the eventual work will cost, through increased interest rates, costs of materials, etc.

Don't Surrender to Old Age Until You've Made This Test

WHAT IS CLIMACTERIC? Medical dictionaries tell us "climacteric" is the time of life when the body undergoes a radical change. The first change, when boys become men and girls become women, is usually between the ages of 14-17. Another change again occurs usually between 40 and 50.

WHO DOES IT AFFECT? Both men and women. In women it is called "menopause" or "change of life". In men, doctors call it "male climacteric."

WHAT ARE THE COMMON SYMPTOMS? Because the body and blood are undergoing important changes during climacteric, the entire system may become upset and symptoms are varied. Men are usually extremely nervous, tire easily, become irritable, feel weak in arms, legs and back, and often are very "crabby". Often there are "hot flashes" accompanied by the "what's the use" feeling. And very often a special supplementary source of certain vitamins and minerals is needed such as you find in this important discovery called AFTER 40 CAPSULES.

WHAT CAN BE DONE? Medical science has discovered many medicines that can tide you over the difficult "change of life" period. Today, try the new capsule called "AFTER 40" that supplies the body with an unusual combination of vitamins and minerals so essential needed during this period. Full month's supply only $2.00... be absolutely delighted with results or cheerful, unquestioned refund.

the lawmakers in view of the municipal elections coming in November.

By basing sewer rental rates on the amount of water used, the pending measure would mean an average rate increase of 31 cents a month for domestic and commercial users. However, Leist pointed out it would produce about 50 percent more revenue—about $9,500 a year.

Leist reminded that it would likewise help provide a financial reserve, needed to keep the city's credit rating high. He has also warned council that pay raises are long overdue for workers in the sewage service branch.

Robinson said he too favors such pay raises, but he indicated he takes a dim view of the importance put on a "cash reserve" to maintain the city's credit for future planning and projects.

AS FOR the proposal to boost sewer rates and tie them into the amount of water used, Robinson voiced strong objections. He declared sufficient revenue, at least for the wage increases, can be obtained through new sewer taps, anticipated in the city's steady growth, and by combing the municipal setup to plug "leaks" in potential revenue.

Robinson claimed increased sewer rates under the plan will cut the use of water in Circleville, "and we have water to sell—plenty of it." In this way, he said, the whole aim of the pending measure may be nullified.

A 10 percent reduction in water sales, he said, would offset about $8,000 in sewage rentals.

As for anticipated sewage taps added:

"A few years ago we only had about 1,900 taps. And now there are approximately 3,000. As I see it, we can probably add from 100 to 150 sewer taps next year as Circleville continues to grow and the new sections develop. And this—at $600 to $900.

"That isn't an awful lot, but it would go a long way. And more importantly, it shows what can be done."

Leist and many other city officials have frequently underlined the injustice of using flat rates in charging for sewer services. Leist has stressed how this forces a person living alone to pay as much for sewer service as a large family pays, perhaps in a next-door dwelling.

LEIST HAS conceded that "no-body likes to raise rates", but he reminded the public that Circleville residents have never been asked to meet an increase in either the sewer or water departments.

By calculating an average from the rates paid in various sections of the city, the utilities manager said the average water bill in the city for domestic and commercial users is $4.96 for three months. The present sewer bill average is $1.50 for three months for a single dwelling.

Under the new proposed sewage scale, based on the water average, about $2.43 for three months. This would be an increase of 93 cents for the three-month period—or a monthly hike of 31 cents.

The minimum charge, Leist explained, would be the same as the minimum charge for water—based on the size of the meter. The normal meter size is five-eighths by three-quarters inches. And the minimum charge for that size is $1.80 for a three month period.

Therefore, Leist explained, the minimum sewer bill would be the same as a minimum water bill—which allows up to 400 cubic feet, or 3,000 gallons, of water.

Leist said he and other officials of the utilities services here want to make it clear that they are not proposing some new and experimental plan in basing sewer rates on water consumption. Such an arrangement, he said, is steadily becoming the modern policy throughout the state.

IN THIS connection, Leist called attention to a recent statement in which the Ohio Department of Health said:

"It is significant that, at this time, approximately 92 percent of the 284 municipalities served by sewage works, in service or under construction, are in some manner making use of revenues derived from sewer service charges. About two-thirds of the rate schedules are based on water consumption. "Many municipalities must give consideration to both volume and strength of wastes in the development or rate structures for equitable serving the users of sewers."

Robinson aimed much of his criticism at a plan to build a large pumping station in the southwestern corner of Ted Lewis Park—part of a vast plan eventually designed to modernize the sewer network throughout the Northend.

Robinson said there are serious doubts as to whether bonding attorneys would consider the big

pumping station legal, because of bonding technicalities and the way the city would plan to use this new unit.

"Furthermore," he said, "it would be intended only for one relatively small section of the city, the area south of the cemetery and west of Court St."

"THEN TOO—although a lot of residents of that area do not realize it—the money that would be spent for the pumping station would only be a start on the project south of the cemetery. Residents of that area would still have to pay about $400 per lot for sewer assessments!"

Robinson said: "Some of us on council feel there should be a more economical way to do it—to bring the sewage line over to the Court St. sewer and eliminate the need of the big pumping station."

He estimated that the big pumping station and a force main would cost approximately $118,000.

Robinson said he is determined to oppose the proposal to raise sewer rates. If the plan would pass council, he warned, "I know very definitely that there would be a referendum on it."

Leist expressed no optimism on the ordinance coming up for final vote Tuesday night. He confined himself instead to pointing out that:

1. Councilmen assured him long ago that the lawmakers would take favorable action if such a proposal would be placed before them.

2. Defeat of the measure will only aggravate the serious situation involving the city's sewer services.

3. The longer council delays action the more the eventual work will cost, through increased interest rates, costs of materials, etc.

GREEN BERETS

THE U. S. ARMY is training guerilla fighters to parachute behind lines and help to organize and direct native forces in fighting their home governments. This new type of U. S. guerillas, who are being trained to be tougher and more skillful than World War II U. S. Rangers and British Commandos, are organized in a Special Forces Group, Airborne.

Members of this unit wear the green beret, symbolic of their status as "double volunteers" — they must have volunteered first for the paratroops as a prerequisite to qualify for Special Forces.

Every army, of course, has its elite troops. That's what these men are—tailored to the special requirements of liberating enslaved peoples, who would be a major concern in any future war. Thus the Special Forces spring from the concept that the U. S. can be depended upon to help captive peoples, but in the main they will be called upon to fight for freedom themselves.

The U. S. learned the hard way in Korea that guerilla bands operating behind the lines can be potent forces if given professional leadership. A high proportion of the beret wearers in the U. S. paratroops are fugitives from communist oppression, itching to settle the score.

Trained to fight with every faculty and small-arms weapon, they could be depended upon to give a good accounting of themselves.

AMERICANS ONCE MORE

ALTHOUGH U. S. production and income climbed to new peaks during the second quarter of 1955 Americans piled up record debts during that period, according to a report by the Commerce Department.

Americans turned out approximately seven per cent more goods and services in the second quarter of this year than in the same period of 1954. Wage earners received about five per cent more in personal income during the same period.

Income soared to an annual rate of more than $300 billion and savings increased $1.3 billion over the first quarter.

The report emphasizes the fact that Americans are leaning heavily on credit; consumer debt on June 30 was almost $25 billion. Of this amount more than $12 billion was for automobiles. The Commerce Department warns that this is a possible soft spot in the unprecedented prosperity and for this reason the administration has instituted credit restrictions to combat the trend.

MIGHTY GAL

THE MIGHTIEST lady of them all, the super carrier Forrestal, melted a bearing on her initial trial run, but will undergo another test in a few days before joining the fleet.

She's quite a gal. Measuring 1,036 feet—or a fifth of a mile—long and having a normal displacement of 59,900 tons, the Forrestal is the Navy's bid to build a vessel big enough to carry the atomic air war to the enemy.

Regardless of what the future may hold in store for her, some of her toughest battles may already be passed. Cynosure of the heated Air Force-Navy clash of the 1940s, the Forrestal almost didn't get beyond the blueprint stage. In the misty days after World War II the Forrestal was jilt-

Who Cares About Series?

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (U)—Do you feel like going into hibernation every year when baseball holds its World Series?

Many thoughtful people do. They can't stand the frightful mass hypocrisy that grips the American people at these periods of general lunacy, a spectacle disheartening to all who hope for progress in the human race.

Who were you for — the New York Yankees or the Brooklyn Dodgers? That was the "crooshul" question. Many an honest man, if he told the truth would reply:

"I couldn't care less which team won if they both were made up of polar bears. What do they mean in my life?"

But tradition makes cowards of us all. Millions of Americans affect a phony interest in the outcome for fear that if they expressed the frank fact that all professional baseball gives them a big fat yawn they would be looked upon as radicals trying to destroy the American way of life.

As any real year-round fan knows, a World Series audience is basically a conclave of social snobs, not baseball enthusiasts. Attendance is a sign of prestige, that you're one of the people in the inner circle. A ticket is a badge of success.

A dyed-in-the-wool baseball fan is as lonesome at a World Series game as a music lover at the opening night of the Metropolitan Opera.

As a sport, baseball is the national pastime with most kids only while they're in the pimple stage. After that the two sports in which the largest number of Americans of both sexes take an active participating interest in are fishing and bowling.

Organized baseball is legally classified as a sport by the U.S.

Supreme Court. But to others it is an industry, a career, an art form not unlike the ballet, or a series of contests not dissimilar to those between the old Roman gladiators. What other so-called "sport" pays pensions?

Baseball is a national pastime only for sub-marginal grownups. Here are the real national pastimes of most adult Americans:

1. Making money.
2. Trying to find a place to park a car.
3. Daydreaming.
4. Clock-watching.
5. Girl watching.

While on the subject of denouncing professional baseball, there is one other thing I would like to point out. The World Series is just about the worst example of—

Editor's Note: Boyle never finished this piece, the big hypocrite. Somebody just gave him a ticket to a World Series game and off he ran.

These Days

George E. Sokolsky's

Richard Nixon was nominated as Vice President because of his salutary work as a member of the House of Representatives where he served on the House Committee on Un-American Activities. He built a national reputation by his persistent investigation into the affairs of Alger Hiss until he got Whittaker Chambers to unearth the "Pumpkin Papers."

Without Nixon's persistence it is possible that Hiss might today be an important figure in American life with a mighty voice in our foreign policy.

As Vice President, Nixon has been able to exhibit few talents because a Vice President must not compete with the President for public recognition. Theodore Roosevelt and Henry Wallace sometimes forgot the etiquette of subordination and struggled against Vice Presidential obscurity, but Richard Nixon served diligently on the Eisenhower team, and was rewarded by inclusion in the Cabinet and the National Security Council over both of which he occasionally presided. President Eisenhower also employed him in ceremonial visits to foreign countries where the Vice President did exceptionally well as a public relations emissary. He has been more active than most Vice Presidents in in the administration of the country.

Politically, Vice President Nixon could do very little to enhance his fortunes without violating his relations with the President. He played an exceptionally active role in the 1954 Congressional campaign, speaking over the country and antagonizing the Democrats, particularly the A.D.A. elements in the party. These are now his moral enemies.

For some reason of personality, when Nixon makes an enemy, it becomes personal rather than political. He is reputed to be disliked by such political figures as Harold Stassen, Milton Eisenhower and Nelson Rockefeller which, if correct, makes Nixon more palatable to most Republicans.

No one can now tell how long Eisenhower will be disabled. It may even be that he will not return to office in this term. It is almost certain that he will not run in 1956 despite all the wailing on the part of Len Hall, the Republican National Chairman, who will not have anything to say about it.

This decision will be made by the President and probably was made some time ago when it was discovered that the President was having difficulties with his blood pressure as well as his temper. He is reputed to have decided to train Nixon to take over, which is laudable in any army officer but does not affect the Vice President's constitutional position.

Nixon may, during the next 15 months, preside at meetings of the National Security Council or the Cabinet. He may receive foreign ambassadors or other visitors, but he may not sign a treaty or make recommendations to Congress or sign commissions in the armed forces. He remains Vice President until he takes the oath as President and Eisenhower cannot hold the Presidency while delegating its responsibilities to anyone.

This situation places the Vice President in a very difficult position. Out of loyalty to Eisenhower, he carries on without authority. The men through whom he must work are not his men; they are the Eisenhower team. Nixon cannot take a position of his own, but he may not be able to ascertain, for a prolonged period, what Eisenhower's wishes are in many areas of public activity.

CHAPTER THIRTY

ADAM took Ann, of course, to see Pinky's house as she had asked, and as usual with Adam, he became interested in the house he was building. He described the walled garden at the back of the house, and the "plant space" before the front windows. That wall was to be lower—the garage was to have windows to match the house—a two-car garage—

"Why two?" asked Ann in surprise. "Pinky doesn't have even one car, though I've often wondered why. If she has the money to build a house . . ."

"I hope she does have it," growled Adam. He had a hammer in his hand, and with it he gave a sharp lick to a form board. He glanced up at Ann from under the brim of his hat. "This house is costing too much," he said in a worried tone.

"It will be a bigger house than ours," said Ann, who had been walking about, "in all ways, won't it?"

"Yeah—our living room is sixteen by twenty-four—this one is eighteen by thirty." He sighed heavily. He knew very well why Pinky was building this house. He even suspected why, in every instance, it must better the house he'd built and which Ann had claimed.

He cracked a small stone with his hammer. It was a pleasure to see the loose-wristed fashion with which he held a hammer, and used it. "Anyway," he cried angrily, "I wish—"

He broke off, straightened and went over to kick at a form corner. Ann guessed at what he had meant to say. He wished he had not got into this house matter with Pinky.

She followed him, said something about liking the kitchen tucked in behind the garage—that would leave the entire garden space for the bedroom and living room windows.

"I did it," growled Adam, "to put the bathroom plumbing and the kitchen pipes all in the same wall."

"Oh, you would!" said Ann, laughing.

"Well, gee, Ann, it's going to cost a mint. I mean, even if Pinky has the money, she'll squall at the full amount—and she'll be right."

and when one did—well, Adam knew, with deep humility, that he admired Ann. She'd said little if anything ever against Pinky, though she'd had plenty of opportunity, and plenty of provocation.

So restored was Adam in his feeling toward Ann that, without thinking of the risk he was running, he suggested that, before going home, they stop at La Fonda for a drink.

Ann thought of the risk, but did not blink an eyelash. "Sure," she said. "Will they sell me a Coke?"

"At a price," grinned Adam.

When he helped her out of the station wagon, she looked doubtfully down at her red-checked gingham dress. "You look fine," he assured her.

Of course, first thing, the gularist greeted him by name, his eyes glinting at sight of Ann.

"You must have been here before," she teased as Adam held her chair.

"Been here often," he told her. "Besides, it's their business to know people by name."

Pinky's house went up almost as fast as the mounting cost of it. Ann quickly saw what Adam had meant about the sum total, but of course, one couldn't build a big house for pennies those days! She was not too surprised when Adam again brought up the matter of selling the thing. Would Ann, he asked with determination, try to sell it for him?

"Me? I never sold a thing in my life, Adam."

"I didn't know but what you'd had a secret past."

"Not as a real estate salesman." He chuckled, then stood uneasy. "If any of your friends should admire it . . . he suggested."

"Oh, yes! I'd know what to do then. But you'd have to do the selling, Adam. You're much better at that sort of thing—if only because you know what you're planning for the house, the way it will be when finished."

He bent over to look into her face. "You think I won't sell it?" he demanded.

"I think you will—if you can." He nodded. "Yeah."

They both were thinking, that "can" depended on Pinky's permission. And Pinky was not predictable.

We see where the National Hall of Fame is staging an election to add more famous Americans to its statutory collection. There's not the usual rush of candidates, however—since a fellow has to be dead 25 years to be eligible.

It's ironic that a person who achieves great success and makes the Hall of Fame eventually winds up a bust.

LAFF-A-DAY

"Good evening! I'm conducting a survey of southern hospitality!"

Try, Stop Me

In the middle of a poker session in Hollywood, George Jessel suddenly held up the betting to observe, "Have you guys noticed how quiet and peaceful it is around here tonight? That's because Groucho Marx isn't in the game."

George Burns, of Burns and Allen, told him, "If you think this is quiet, you should have been here last Friday when you weren't playing!"

Herb Shriner, waiting his turn to have his hair cut, picked up a magazine for expectant fathers and came across this bit of advice: "It will help to place the diaper in the shape of a baseball diamond with you at bat. Fold second base over home plate. Place baby on the pitcher's mound. Then pin first base and third base to home plate and you're all set."

"All set, my eye!" commented Shriner. "I tried that very trick on my first-born, but the game had to be called on account of wet grounds."

"Mary Hawthorth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: The Bible says "If any man be in Christ he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold all things are become new." (2 Corinthians 5:17).

A famous minister's interpretation is as follows: "Never be discouraged about yourself. You may have tried all your life to rid yourself of your weaknesses, your obsessions, jealousies, sins, inferiorities, without success. Your failure is probably that you have been trying to make yourself over. That is a long, tedious and essentially impossible project.

"But it can be done in no time at all by Christ. All you need to do is to say to Him simply, 'Lord I do not want to be this way any more'—and mean it. He will do for you what you cannot do for yourself: effect a lasting change in you. Ask Him to change you."

Cured Self of Drink
This sounds very simple and easy. But a person who has suffered from a split mind, the worst form of schizophrenia, knows it isn't quite so simple. Two years ago I definitely cured myself of this terrible affliction. One year ago I cured myself of the drink habit. This was accomplished through faith in God (I had to learn how to have faith), plus will power and determination. My next step towards self-improvement is to cure myself of the smoking habit, because I feel it is injurious.

There are many good books on spiritual therapy, but I feel the need of some good books on psychiatry. What would you recommend? Regardless of how hard I try to avoid them, ugly thoughts appear at times, and when they do I pray: "God create within me a clean mind." The ugly thoughts are dispelled temporarily; but in time they reappear. As you have helped others, I feel that you can help me also.

DEAR D. L.: As I understand, you are looking for a psychiatric book (or books) that might help you to establish a mental attitude of healthy self-confidence in dealing with ugly thoughts that sometimes come to the fore in your consciousness. And you hope I can make some worthwhile suggestions. Well, that's quite a challenge.

In general, psychiatric writings on the subject of split personality, etc., are prepared by specialists for the edification of fellow specialists and - or professional journals, for the purpose of sharing ideas and comparing notes on useful diagnostic and treatment procedures. Thus to get any good from them, the reader theoretically should have a medical education, slanted towards psychiatric and analytic therapy.

For the average anxious layman, the reas of specialist lore in search of self-cure is apt to be misleading — somewhat comparable in effect, to our forefathers' reading the old-fashioned almanacs for guidance in dealing with seasonal ailments. The result, very often, is a dizzied conviction of being more or less ailing in all the many ways described — with no clear notion of where to begin to restore full health.

Will-Training Urged
However, a psychiatric specialist, Dr. Abraham A. Low, has written a book "Mental Health Through Will-Training" (Christopher Publishing House, Boston, Mass.), which offers the reader a tested-and-proven system of self-help psychotherapy.

Dr. Low developed the system during the years when he was assistant director, and later acting director, of the Psychiatric Institute of the University of Illinois.

Medical School. He delayed publication of the book until he could claim "solid experience concerning results" of his pioneer work.

Dr. Low's book tells of psychotherapy methods evolved over a period of years by Recovery, Inc. This is a non-profit group engaged in teaching mental convalescents—post - psychotic and psychoneurotic individuals—how to practice psychiatric self-help. In 1943, a three-volume history of the association's origins, scope of activity and mode of operation was published. And in December, 1952, a national magazine gave substantial coverage to the accomplishments of Recovery, Inc. — which aroused such interest that reprints were issued.

"Members of Recovery, Inc., like Alcoholics Anonymous, protect their own health by helping one another," the magazine article notes. And Dr. Low's book on will-training tells how it's done.

He can, of course, turn to Eisenhower's unofficial cabinet, to Ser-man Adams, or John J. McCloy, or Milton Eisenhower for guidance as to the President's wishes, but these are not always in agreement and how could he know whom to follow? He might even in time take a position of his own, but this would lead to an inner conflict in the Eisenhower group.

The Founding Fathers apparently did not foresee such an eventuality as a President being sick without being disabled. They did not envisage such a situation as Woodrow Wilson's illness produced, or, for that matter, Franklin D. Roosevelt's secret sickness to which many attest now who were silent when it was important. The Founding Fathers established a stand-by who would be ready to become President if the President died or became disabled. But they were skippy in their description of disabling possibilities.

At any rate, Nixon will have a long period of functioning as President in some degree because there is no else to function with any degree of legitimacy, but without responsibility or authority. It is a startling situation for a great nation.

"Buy Building Supplies where LEADING BUILDERS buy"

"Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: The Bible says "If any man be in Christ he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold all things are become new." (2 Corinthians 5:17).

A famous minister's interpretation is as follows: "Never be discouraged about yourself. You may have tried all your life to rid yourself of your weaknesses, your obsessions, jealousies, sins, inferiorities, without success. Your failure is probably that you have been trying to make yourself over. That is a long, tedious and essentially impossible project.

"But it can be done in no time at all by Christ. All you need to do is to say to Him simply, 'Lord I do not want to be this way any more'—and mean it. He will do for you what you cannot do for yourself: effect a lasting change in you. Ask Him to change you."

Cured Self of Drink

This sounds very simple and easy. But a person who has suffered from a split mind, the worst form of schizophrenia, knows it isn't quite so simple. Two years ago I definitely cured myself of this terrible affliction. One year ago I cured myself of the drink habit. This was accomplished through faith in God (I had to learn how to have faith), plus will power and determination. My next step towards self-improvement is to cure myself of the smoking habit, because I feel it is injurious.

There are many good books on spiritual therapy, but I feel the need of some good books on psychiatry. What would you recommend? WASHINGTON (AP) — A gray-haired, square-jawed fellow who weighs only 150 has moved into the presidential headquarters at Denver to take charge during the convalescence of President Eisenhower. His name is Sherman Adams.

Quietly, Adams has shifted from Washington into his accustomed place of authority near the President.

This single action, more than any other perhaps, has dramatized the decision by key administration officials to keep things moving as nearly as possible along accustomed lines pending the President's return to active duty.

He's one of the most interesting figures in government, this man Adams, whose actual size doesn't reflect his heavyweight influence. It is generally agreed it would be difficult to say where Adams' influence at the White House ends and the President's begins in the day-to-day decisions of government.

The reason for this lies in his position as the President's unofficial "chief of staff" and in the fact that the President obviously places complete trust in him.

Almost everybody who sees the President during working hours must arrange it with "Sherm," whose official title is assistant to the President. Adams is the man who sees Eisenhower from day to day more than anyone else. He interprets the President's wishes to Cabinet members and to others. He is in a position to encourage or discourage a course of action proposed to the President.

Adams has said he regards himself merely as an instrument to relieve the President of as many burdens of his office as he possibly can. He works long hours, usually arriving at his desk at 7:30 a.m. every weekday. He rarely shows up on the Washington cocktail circuit.

One Washington hostess has said: "What can you do with a man who gets up at 5:30 and goes to bed at 8:30?"

It probably is significant that the 5-foot-8 Adams once successfully bossed more than 600 lumberjacks in the Vermont woods. And he made his authority stick.

In one brief span of time, a log knocked out his front teeth; a horse kicked him in the face, fracturing his frontal sinuses; and a piece of pulp wood fell 60 feet, smacked him behind the left ear, and partially deafened him.

A less determined man might have become discouraged at this point, but Adams went on to become one of the company's toll officials. He entered politics in 1940 and served two terms in the New Hampshire Legislature and one term in Congress. He served two terms as governor of New Hampshire.

Adams was one of Eisenhower's early supporters for the presidency and helped mastermind his nomination and election. Then he moved into the White House with Eisenhower.

Adams tries to be as anonymous as possible but he long ago was pegged as a potent influence in government. And there's no sign this influence has waned.

Mt. Gilead Store Damaged By Fire

MOUNT GILEAD (AP) — Damage was estimated between $40,000 and $100,000 in a fire that last night swept through the Union Department Store here.

The lower estimate came from a store employee, while the higher figure was given unofficially by the Morrow County sheriff's office.

The fire of unknown origin apparently started in the Union's grocery store in the basement of the two-story brick structure. Flames spread to the department store on the first floor. A furniture store and two offices in the same building were not damaged.

Colville Discloses Several Plans For 49th Annual Pumpkin Show

Plans for the upcoming 49th annual Pumpkin Show are moving along rapidly, according to an announcement by Bob Colville, "Mr. Pumpkin Show".

Colville listed a number of plans either officially set or being considered:

1. The grand prize in the pumpkin pie baking contest will be a deep freeze unit. Colville said this is worth $350 to $400. Last year's top award was a refrigerator.
2. The "Miss Pumpkin Show" and "Little Miss Pumpkin Show" floats will be combined into a re-designed float. Last year, Colville commented, there was some criticism that the larger float observed the vision of parade spectators.

Trago Is Denied Another Trial

William H. Jones, Trago's attorney and municipal judge here, said he would take the case to the Fourth District Court of Appeals. Judge White, sitting by assignment, fined Trago $1,000 and costs, and sentenced him a year in Gallia County Jail after his conviction Aug. 30 of contributing to the delinquency of a 17-year-old Gallipolis serviceman.

Mt. Gilead Store Damaged By Fire

MOUNT GILEAD (AP) — Damage was estimated between $40,000 and $100,000 in a fire that last night swept through the Union Department Store here.

The lower estimate came from a store employee, while the higher figure was given unofficially by the Morrow County sheriff's office.

The fire of unknown origin apparently started in the Union's grocery store in the basement of the two-story brick structure. Flames spread to the department store on the first floor. A furniture store and two offices in the same building were not damaged.

Ohio Escapee Held By Alabama Cops

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — An escaped slayer from the London, Ohio, Prison Farm has told authorities here he is ready to go back to finish his life sentence. Jerome Oates, 34, of Youngstown, Ohio, under sentence for second degree murder, surrendered to Mobile police Saturday and is to be picked up by Ohio authorities.

Oates and Walter Jones, 25, of Cleveland, escaped last Thursday in a truck Oates drove at the prison. Oates said Jones accompanied him to Mobile. Jones was serving life for first degree murder.

Colville Discloses Several Plans For 49th Annual Pumpkin Show

Plans for the upcoming 49th annual Pumpkin Show are moving along rapidly, according to an announcement by Bob Colville, "Mr. Pumpkin Show".

Colville listed a number of plans either officially set or being considered:

1. The grand prize in the pumpkin pie baking contest will be a deep freeze unit. Colville said this is worth $350 to $400. Last year's top award was a refrigerator.

2. The "Miss Pumpkin Show" and "Little Miss Pumpkin Show" floats will be combined into a redesigned float. Last year, Colville commented, there was some criticism that the larger float obscured the vision of parade spectators.

Trago Is Denied Another Trial

GALLIPOLIS (AP) — Common Pleas Judge Francis D. White of Athens County has denied defense motions for a new trial and suspension of sentence for Sheriff David L. Trago of Jackson County.

William H. Jones, Trago's attorney and municipal judge here, said he would take the case to the Fourth District Court of Appeals. Judge White, sitting by assignment, fined Trago $1,000 and costs, and sentenced him a year in Gallia County Jail after his conviction Aug. 30 of contributing to the delinquency of a 17-year-old Gallipolis serviceman.

Zzzu Takes Over As Last On List

LONDON (AP) — A man who may be champion for a long time took over today as holder of the last place in London's telephone directory.

His name: V. K. Zzzu. In the new directory Zzzu gained the prideful place from Lewiz Zymbala, who reigned for years.

3. THE U. S. NAVY will maintain a tent in front of the Court House. A 15-minute film on the Navy Air Corps will be room for 50 persons to be seated, with a complete change of audience each showing.

4. New lights may be added to the parade route. A set of lights may be put up on W. Main St. near Scioto St. and another set on Pinckney St. There were numerous complaints about "blind spots" where spectators could not see the parades, Colville said.

5. The platform at Scioto and Main Streets may be removed and placed on N. Court St. Colville said there was too much "competition" from passing trains, which disrupted events taking place at that corner.

Colville revealed that the Gooding Amusement Co. would again be here. There will be 11 major "rides" in the show's program.

Ohio Governor Frank J. Lausche and Columbus Mayor and Circleville native M. E. (Jack) Senbrenner have been invited to attend the Pumpkin Show, Colville revealed.

"Mr. Pumpkin Show" said that if the weather again holds out the event should be a huge success. He recalled that no rain has fallen during the Pumpkin Show here for the past four years.

CONCRETE MASONRY
Assures
EASIER FINANCING

Almost everyone has to borrow money to build a home. But your Bank or Building & Loan Association gives careful consideration to the type of construction you have in mind before granting a loan. For example, if your home is to be of concrete masonry . . . which is the best guarantee of fire safety, storm safety, low upkeep cost and lifetime durability . . . your chances of securing favorable terms are much better than if you plan to use less desirable materials. A concrete masonry home makes a good "money risk" for the financing company — usually at a real saving to the home builder. Any way you look at it — it pays to build with Concrete Masonry units. 2 Yearlings Leading Colts To Lead In Pro Grid League

The Associated Press

Led by a couple of yearlings, the frisky Baltimore Colts are kicking up their heels in the National Football League.

The youngsters, Alan Ameche and George Shaw, have accounted for all the Baltimore touchdowns in a surprising season in which the Colts find themselves in a three-way tie for the lead in the NFL's western conference today after whipping Detroit 28-13 over the weekend. The Colts, like the Green Bay Packers and Los Angeles Rams, have 2-0 records, and the Colts meet the Packers Saturday night in the best game on the NFL card.

Green Bay kept pace by shelling the Chicago Bears Sunday 24-3, while the Rams cut it as close with a 27-26 victory over Pittsburgh, achieved on Les Richter's 33-yard field goal just as the gun sounded.

Washington, another surprise package, leads the Eastern Conference with a 2-0 mark after its 31-30 squeaker over Philadelphia Saturday night. In other games Sunday, Cleveland's Browns snapped back after an opening loss to crush San Francisco 38-3 and the Chicago Cardinals upended New York 28-17.

A record crowd of 40,030 watched in awe at Baltimore as the Colts manhandled the Lions. After all, the team had won only three games a year since coming back into the league in 1953. And these were the mighty Detroit Lions, whom they'd never beaten.

When Ameche wasn't running through the Lions, Shaw was passing over their heads. He hit for two touchdowns and the 28 points the Colts accumulated so stimulated the defensive platoon that they stopped Detroit cold in the second half.

Green Bay owes much of its ear success to Tobin Rote. Rote fired 32 yards to Bill Howton for one touchdown Sunday and connected with Gary Knefke for a 28-yard clincher in the final period. In between scoring passes, Rote plunged one yard for the other Packer touchdown.

It seemed for a time that Los Angeles' generosity would hand their game to Pittsburgh. Two fumbles and a disastrous fourth-down punt attempt virtually handed the Steelers three touchdowns, but the Rams pulled themselves together and marched from their 30 to Pittsburgh's 26, with the aid of a hotly disputed 15-yard penalty.

Richter booted the winning field goal from the 33 and Pittsburgh Coach Walt Kiesling blasted the officials for the "worst" officiating he's ever seen.

Otto Graham, who couldn't get started in Cleveland's first game against Washington, got thoroughly warmed up against San Francisco. Shooting his pinpoint passes through the San Francisco defense, Graham guided an attack that rolled up 357 yards. When San Francisco closed up to stop the passes, he sent Ed (Big Mo) Moneyski and Fred (Curly) Morrison crashing through the weary 49er line.

Philadelphia gave Washington three touchdowns on two fumbles and a kick off which was allowed to roll unopposed into the end zone. Inspired by such gifts, the Redskins struck back from a 16-0 deficit with 28 points in a wild third quarter and got three more from Vic Janowicz' fourth-period field goal. The old Ohio State flash had quite a night, with 19 points in all on two touchdowns and four conversions in addition to the field goal.

The Cardinals utilized two long scoring passes by Lamar McHan, one play covering 51 yards to Ollie Matson and one for 74 to Gern Nagler, plus a 65-yard run by Dave Mann to upset the Giants. The Jim Palatis intercepted a pass and ran seven yards to score.

Michigan Star Leading Big 10

CHICAGO (AP)—Sophomore full-back Ray Nitschke of Illinois and junior end Dave Howard of Wisconsin both scored three touchdowns Saturday to move into a second place tie in the Big Ten scoring race.

Nitschke and Howard tied Ohio State's Howard Cassidy — each having 18 points.

Michigan's Ron Kramer, however, upped his lead to 25 points by cashing in on a pair of extra points.

Cincinnati proved Brooklyn's toughest rival this year, the Redlegs beating the Dodgers 10 times in 22 games.

Dodgers' First World Crown Within Sight

Bums Chalk 3rd Win, Move Into Wide Open Spaces Of Stadium

NEW YORK (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers' long-sought goal—their first world championship—appeared within sight today.

They were leading the New York Yankees three games to two as action shifted back to the wide-open spaces of Yankee Stadium. It was there Brooklyn lost the first two games of the World Series. Their three successive victories came in the compact and friendly confines of Ebbets Field.

After winning 5-3 Sunday, the Brooks from Manager Walt Alton on down believed they could win at least one in the Stadium. If not today, then tomorrow for sure. Yankee Manager Casey Stengel growled: "I'm not predicting anything except that it will go segen."

His starting pitchers, he said, would be Whitey Ford today and Tommy Byrne Tuesday.

"Either Don Newcombe or Karl Spooner will be my pitcher," Alton said. "I can't make up my mind. But if there is a seventh game, Johnny Podres will pitch Tuesday."

Newcombe himself may make up Alton's mind for him. The Dodgers' 20-game winner, who lost the first game, complained that the stiffness in his arm hadn't left him. "It's still sore," he said. "I didn't even bother to throw today because of the pain. I don't know whether or not I'll be able to pitch."

Spooner, who worked three fine innings in relief in the second game, said he was ready to go. The largest crowd of the series, some 65,000, is expected to watch the sixth game. The forecast was "fair" and continued cool, with the temperature in the high 60s.

Although the Yankees were a 6-5 favorite to win today's game, the odds-makers, for the first time, made the Dodgers the choice to win the series—a standard 13-5. Never before were the Dodgers' prospects so bright, although once before, back in 1952, Brooklyn led after five games only to drop the next two games and the series to the Yankees. But as Alton said when reminded of the '52 debacle: "This is a different year and a different Dodger team." He could also have added "and a different Yankee team."

Injuries to outfielders Mickey Mantle and Hank Bauer have stripped the Yankees of much of their attack and the Yankee bullpen has been of less service than anybody anticipated. Right now the Dodgers' staff looks stronger than Stengel's. The Brooks not only have the pitching but they've proven they have the power and the sure-handed defense that goes with making a championship club.

Never before had a Brooklyn team won three in a row over the American League. Never before, in seven chances over 40 years, have the Dodgers won a world championship. Never has a team lost the first two games and come back to take the title inside seven games. The first has been done. One more victory would accomplish the other two.

Sunday's victory was by far the sweetest for Alton. He gambled in Roger Craig, a 24-year-old right-hander who only a year ago was pitching in the Class B Piedmont League. The bony 6-4 right-hander, who pitched only 91 major league innings since his promotion

from Montreal in midseason, upheld the judgment of Alton by turning in a creditable performance.

He didn't last, but when Alton yanked him in the seventh he had yielded only four hits and two runs. There were none out and he had walked Elston Howard after a home run by pinch hitter Bob Cerv had cut the Dodgers' lead to 4-2.

Clem Labine, Saturday's winner, came in and threw a double play ball to Irv Noren. From then on, Labine pitched almost perfect ball except for a home run by Yogi Berra and a single by Eddie Robinson in the eighth. He retired pinch hitters Andy Carey, Tommy Byrne and Howard on five pitches in the ninth.

"I liked what I saw of Craig all year," enthused Alton. "I had a lot of confidence in him. He has guts. He didn't want to come out in the seventh and his stuff was still sharp but I wasn't sure of his control and figured here was the spot for Labine's low pitch to get a double play."

Once again, it was the home run ball the ruined the Yankees. Bob Grim, the Yankee starter and loser, had good stuff but it looked especially good to Duke Snider and Sandy Amoros. Snider whacked two out of the park and Amoros contributed a two-run blast that got the Dodgers off and running in the second inning.

Snider's homers, his third and fourth of the series, were especially irksome to Stengel.

"He shouldn't get that many homers," Stengel said. "We shouldn't let that man hit that many homers. Not after you get two strikes on him the way we did."

Stengel, gracious in defeat, admitted he was stunned at losing three games in Ebbets Field. "We should have won here," he said. "We won here before and we have only ourselves to blame. I'll be glad to get back to the open range in our park but that park is no excuse. It's more us. We didn't take advantage of the short fences. I got the guys who hit homers too. Maybe more than they have. They just didn't hit as many as Brooklyn did."

2 Yearlings Leading Colts To Lead In Pro Grid League

The Associated Press

Led by a couple of yearlings, the frisky Baltimore Colts are kicking up their heels in the National Football League.

The youngsters, Alan Ameche and George Shaw, have accounted for all the Baltimore touchdowns in a surprising season in which the Colts find themselves in a three-way tie for the lead in the NFL's western conference today after whipping Detroit 28-13 over the weekend. The Colts, like the Green Bay Packers and Los Angeles Rams, have 2-0 records, and the Colts meet the Packers Saturday night in the best game on the NFL card.

Green Bay kept pace by shellacking the Chicago Bears Sunday 24-3, while the Rams cut it as close with a 27-26 victory over Pittsburgh, achieved on Les Richter's 33-yard field goal just as the gun sounded.

Washington, another surprise package, leads the Eastern Conference with a 2-0 mark after its 31-30 squeaker over Philadelphia Saturday night. In other games Sunday, Cleveland's Browns snapped back after an opening loss to crush San Francisco 38-3 and the Chicago Cardinals upended New York 28-17.

A record crowd of 40,030 watched in awe at Baltimore as the Colts manhandled the Lions. After all, the team had won only three games a year since coming back into the league in 1953. And these were the mighty Detroit Lions, whom they'd never beaten.

When Ameche wasn't running through the Lions, Shaw was passing over their heads. He hit for two touchdowns and the 28 points the Colts accumulated so stimulated the defensive platoon that they stopped Detroit cold in the second half.

Green Bay owes much of its ear success to Tobin Rote. Rote fired 32 yards to Bill Howton for one touchdown Sunday and connected with Gary Knefele for a 28-yard clincher in the final period. In between scoring passes, Rote plunged one yard for the other Packer touchdown.

It seemed for a time that Los Angeles' generosity would hand their game to Pittsburgh. Two fumbles and a disastrous fourth-down punt attempt virtually handed the Steelers three touchdowns, but the Rams pulled themselves together and marched from their 30 to Pittsburgh's 26, with the aid of a hotly disputed 15-yard penalty.

Richter booted the winning field goal from the 33 and Pittsburgh Coach Walt Kiesling blasted the officials for the "worst" officiating he's ever seen.

Otto Graham, who couldn't get started in Cleveland's first game against Washington, got thoroughly warmed up against San Francisco. Shooting his pinpoint passes through the San Francisco defense, Graham guided an attack that rolled up 357 yards. When San Francisco closed up to stop the passes, he sent Ed (Big Mo) Mordelewski and Fred (Curly) Morrison crashing through the weary 49er line.

Philadelphia gave Washington three touchdowns on two fumbles and a kick off which was allowed to roll unmolested into the end zone. Inspired by such gifts, the Redskins struck back from a 16-0 deficit with 28 points in a wild third quarter and got three more from Vic Janowicz' fourth-period field goal. The old Ohio State flash had quite a night, with 19 points in all on two touchdowns and four conversions in addition to the field goal.

The Cardinals utilized two long scoring passes by Lamar McHan, one play covering 51 yards to Ollie Matson and one for 74 to Gern Nagler, plus a 65-yard run by Dave Mann to upset the Giants. The Jim Paltis intercepted a pass and ran seven yards to score.

Michigan Star Leading Big 10

CHICAGO (AP)—Sophomore full-back Ray Nitschke of Illinois and junior end Dave Howard of Wisconsin both scored three touchdowns Saturday to move into a second place tie in the Big Ten scoring race.

Nitschke and Howard tied Ohio State's Howard Cassidy — each having 18 points.

Michigan's Ron Kramer, however, upped his lead to 25 points by cashing in on a pair of extra points.

Bums Chalk 3rd Win, Move Into Wide Open Spaces Of Stadium

NEW YORK (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers' long-sought goal—their first world championship—appeared within sight today.

They were leading the New York Yankees three games to two as action shifted back to the wide-open spaces of Yankee Stadium. It was there Brooklyn lost the first two games of the World Series. Their three successive victories came in the compact and friendly confines of Ebbets Field.

After winning 5-3 Sunday, the Brooks from Manager Walt Alton on down believed they could win at least one in the Stadium. If not today, then tomorrow for sure. Yankee Manager Casey Stengel growled: "I'm not predicting anything except that it will go segen."

His starting pitchers, he said, would be Whitey Ford today and Tommy Byrne Tuesday.

"Either Don Newcombe or Karl Spooner will be my pitcher," Alton said. "I can't make up my mind. But if there is a seventh game, Johnny Podres will pitch Tuesday."

Newcombe himself may make up Alton's mind for him. The Dodgers' 20-game winner, who lost the first game, complained that the stiffness in his arm hadn't left him.

"It's still sore," he said. "I didn't even bother to throw today because of the pain. I don't know whether or not I'll be able to pitch."

Spooner, who worked three fine innings in relief in the second game, said he was ready to go.

The largest crowd of the series, some 65,000, is expected to watch the sixth game. The forecast was "fair and continued cool," with the temperature in the high 60s.

Although the Yankees were a 6-5 favorite to win today's game, the odds-makers, for the first time, made the Dodgers the choice to win the series—a standard 13-5.

Never before were the Dodgers' prospects so bright, although once before, back in 1952, Brooklyn led after five games only to drop the next two games and the series to the Yankees. But as Alton said when reminded of the '52 debacle: "This is a different year and a different Dodger team." He could also have added "and a different Yankee team."

Injuries to outfielders Mickey Mantle and Hank Bauer have stripped the Yankees of much of their attack and the Yankee bullpen has been of less service than anybody anticipated. Right now the Dodgers' staff looks stronger than Stengel's. The Brooks not only have the pitching but they've proven they have the power and the sure-handed defense that goes with making a championship club.

Never before had a Brooklyn team won three in a row over the American Leaguers. Never before, in seven chances over 40 years, have the Dodgers won a world championship. Never has a team lost the first two games and come back to take the title inside seven games. The first has been done. One more victory would accomplish the other two.

Sunday's victory was by far the sweetest for Alton. He gambled in Roger Craig, a 24-year-old right-hander who only a year ago was pitching in the Class B Piedmont League. The bony 6-4 right-hander, who pitched only 91 major league innings since his promotion

from Montreal in midseason, upheld the judgment of Alton by turning in a creditable performance.

He didn't last, but when Alton yanked him in the seventh he had yielded only four hits and two runs. There were none out and he had walked Elston Howard after a home run by pinch hitter Bob Cerv had cut the Dodgers' lead to 4-2.

Clem Labine, Saturday's winner, came in and threw a double play ball to Irv Noren. From then on, Labine pitched almost perfect ball except for a home run by Yogi Berra and a single by Eddie Robinson in the eighth. He retired pinch hitters Andy Carey, Tommy Byrne and Howard on five pitches in the ninth.

"I liked what I saw of Craig all year," enthused Alton. "I had a lot of confidence in him. He has guts. He didn't want to come out in the seventh and his stuff was still sharp but I wasn't sure of his control and figured here was the spot for Labine's low pitch to get a double play."

Once again, it was the home run ball that ruined the Yankees. Bob Grim, the Yankee starter and loser, had good stuff but it looked especially good to Duke Snider and Sandy Amoros. Snider whacked two out of the park and Amoros contributed a two-run blast that got the Dodgers off and running in the second inning.

Snider's homers, his third and fourth of the series, were especially irksome to Stengel.

"He shouldn't get that many homers," Stengel said. "We shouldn't let that man hit that many homers. Not after you get two strikes on him the way we did."

Stengel, gracious in defeat, admitted he was stunned at losing three games in Ebbets Field.

"We should have won here," he said. "We won here before and we have only ourselves to blame. I'll be glad to get back to the open range in our park but that park is no excuse. It's more us. We didn't take advantage of the short fences. I got the guys who hit homers too. Maybe more than they have. They just didn't hit as many as Brooklyn did."

Newspaper Week Puts Accent On Ohio's 'Open Meeting' Law

Public Officials Can No Longer Act 'On Quiet'

True Freedom Must Have Free Press, Lausche Warns

This week—National Newspaper Week—has special meaning for Pickaway County residents and all other Ohioans. It is the first week of operation of a new state law, effective September 30, which requires that all meetings of boards, commissions, agencies and authorities of all local units of government be open to the public.

These include city and village councils, boards of education, county and township boards and all other political subdivision units. Under the new "open meetings" law, greater public attendance and interest in meetings of local government bodies are encouraged. The law also provides that no official action may be taken at any executive session and that minutes of all meetings must be promptly recorded and open to public inspection.

This new law insures that government-by-secrecy is illegal in Ohio, and it brings to a halt in this state the growing national trend to conduct public business behind closed doors. Ohio's newspapers, including The Herald, played a leading part in encouraging passage of the new law, which is in full accord with this year's National Newspaper Week theme—"Your Newspaper Fights for Your Right to Know."

In a special statement to newspapers and to citizens of Ohio, Governor Frank J. Lausche this week declared this theme has special significance in a democracy.

"Without a free press there can be no true freedom. A citizenry well and honestly informed as to public affairs will decide issues intelligently and be alert to those things which threaten to weaken the structures of our democratic government. Whittling at the genuine principles of a free press will

Traffic Jams Mar Sunday On Turnpike

CLEVELAND (AP) — Motorists swarmed onto the new Ohio Turnpike in fine weather yesterday, and ran into monumental traffic jams when they tried to get through the toll gates and home last night.

Through traffic zipped along without trouble, but cars trying to get off the superhighway at interchanges piled up behind the toll gates.

Thousands of sightseers probably swelled the day's total number of cars on the turnpike well over the 50,000 predicted by turnpike commission chairman James W. Shocknessy. Official figures won't be available until later today.

Yesterday's experience caused Shocknessy to say it might be necessary to widen exits and install more toll lines at some exits. Bad jams developed in the evening at the interchanges connecting with U.S. 42 at Strongsville, Ohio 8 at Northfield, and routes 21 and 82 at Brecksville.

Four persons were injured in two accidents. A Cleveland couple, Harry McQuaid, 63, and his wife, Ethel, 62, and their niece, Mrs. Helen Leahy, 52, of Coitsville, N. J., received minor injuries when their car was forced off the

be the first evidence of the weakening of our democracy. Pray that it will not happen."

Also recognizing the observance of National Newspaperboy Day, next Saturday, the governor issued a special proclamation calling attention to newspaperboys as "a fixed tradition and a living symbol of vital and enterprising young Americanism."

The proclamation cited that "thousands of newspaperboys, known proudly as 'little merchants,' are an integral part of the means of distributing the news of a free press and have provided many illustrations of the place of economic independence in our way of life." It also pointed out that many men of eminence in America gained their first knowledge of economics through their newspaperboy experience.
